

Damaged power lines will affect Euston train services on Monday

Mar 08, 2020 16:28 GMT

Euston train service disruption Monday

There will be no trains to and from Euston after 2100 hours tonight (Sunday). Network Rail engineers have to repair 10km of overhead power lines in north of London.

Train services to and from the capital will also be subject to delay and cancellation on Monday as only three of four lines will be available to and from the station. All train services from Euston to the West Midlands and the North West of England will be subject to disruption.

Passengers are advised to check for the latest information at www.nationalrail.co.uk.

A spokesman for London & Northwestern Railway said "There is significant damage to overhead electric wires. This severely limits the train services we can run today and Monday . We are doing all we can to help Network Rail complete the repairs as quickly as possible. We encourage anyone delayed by 15 minutes or more to claim compensation. Details can be found on our website at LNR.uk"

The West Midlands Trains franchise started on 10 December 2017 and will run until 2025/26.

West Midlands Trains operates 1,300 services a day, manages 150 stations and provides over 80 million passenger journeys a year. Over the course of the franchise, West Midlands Trains will be investing £1 billion into the rail network to deliver new trains, improved routes and station upgrades. This will include 400 new train carriages across the network and space for an extra 85,000 passengers into Birmingham and London at peak times.

The franchise is a joint venture between Abellio (70.1% share) and East Japan Railway Company / Mitsui & Co., Ltd (29.9% share in a 50:50 split). Abellio is the international passenger transport subsidiary of the Dutch national railway company, Nederlandse Spoorwegen. In the UK, Abellio operates ScotRail and Greater Anglia train services, Merseyrail services in a joint venture with Serco and buses through Abellio London. For more information visit www.abellio.com
