London Northwestern Railway passengers reminded timetables will change this weekend

Passengers travelling with London Northwestern Railway are being reminded that timetable changes come into effect this weekend.

From Sunday 15th December, LNR will be making minor changes to some services, including an additional hourly train service between Liverpool Lime Street and Birmingham New Street.

Those travelling between Liverpool and Birmingham on a weekday will be able to choose from two trains per hour all day. The new service includes a stop at Mossley Hill, bringing the first direct line from Mossley Hill to Birmingham in decades.

Jonny Wiseman, customer experience director for London Northwestern Railway, said: “Timetables are changing from this Sunday, so I urge passengers to check journey planners before travelling. Multiple routes will be subject to minor changes, with additional services made available on some lines including between Liverpool and Birmingham.”

All rail passengers are encouraged to check their journeys as new departure times will apply on many routes across the region. The changes come as part of the twice-yearly rail industry timetable change.

A summary of the changes is available to view at www.lnr.uk/dec24
