Nominations are rolling in as the search for the region's Cross City Heroes continues

Local Scout groups, animal charities and social groups tackling loneliness in their communities are among those already nominated as the region's Cross City Heroes.

The campaign has also seen entries highlighting a local charity which supports neonatal units and a group working with their local library.

West Midlands Railway and West Midlands Rail Executive are running the Cross City Heroes competition, to celebrate 40 years of passenger services between Lichfield, Birmingham and Redditch/Bromsgrove. The two organisations want to find deserving community groups near to every local station along the route.

These Cross City Heroes could be charities, young people's clubs, sports teams or other community groups who make a difference to the lives of people in the area. The competition aims to find those who may not have received the recognition they deserve and would like to hear how they are making an impact to those around them.

The Cross City line has grown to become the busiest commuter route outside of London, and today, West Midlands Railway manages 24 stations along the line.

Fay Easton, head of stakeholder and community for West Midlands Railway, said: "It would be fantastic to get a representative group based in the locality of each of our 24 Cross City Line stations. The route is such a key part of many communities, and there is so much going on in every one of these areas. If you know of or are part of a group near a Cross City line station, please do make a nomination and get involved."

Cllr Roger Lawrence, chair of West Midlands Rail Executive and West Midlands Combined Authority (WMCA) portfolio holder for transport, said: "The Cross City line is by far our busiest commuter rail route and now carries more than 55,000 passengers every day. This is due to the significant investment we have put into the route over the years including the extension down to Bromsgrove in July this year which saw the first electric services starting to and from the town.

"We believe local rail lines are an important part of any local community and to mark the Cross City Line's 40th anniversary we wanted to highlight and acknowledge some of the selfless work people in those communities are doing to help others."

A group will be selected for each of the 24 West Midlands Railway stations on the route.

Winning groups will receive a plaque of recognition at their local station and a VIP visit to see the new trains for the route being built in Derby. The train operator will also donate 10 free tickets for journeys across the West Midlands Railway and London Northwestern Railway networks, to aid in winning group's fundraising efforts.

Groups can be nominated online at westmidlandsrailway.co.uk/crosscityheroes.

Entries will close on 31 March and winners announced mid April.

You can follow the progress of the campaign on social media at #crosscityheroes

All nominations will be assessed by the West Midlands Railway team, in conjunction with West Midlands Rail Executive.
