Passengers given chance to quiz rail company at Milton Keynes Central

Passengers in Milton Keynes will be able to discuss their rail service at a special event at the town's railway station next week.

Officials from London Northwestern Railway (LNR) will be on hand to answer questions as part of the operator's 'Whistle Stop Tour'.

Two sessions will take place on the main concourse at Milton Keynes Central on Tuesday 12 October from 8-10am and 4-6.30pm.

The event comes at a time when increasing numbers of passengers are returning to the railway following the pandemic.

Annamaria Izzard, head of stations for LNR, said: “With the recent easing of restrictions our teams have been pleased to welcome more passengers back to the railway in recent weeks.

“As more people start travelling again it is the perfect time to resume our popular Whistle Stop Tour sessions so we can hear from our customers face-to-face.”
